

Jayne Clairmont is a nationally recognized leader, consultant and innovator in the care of those living with Alzheimer's disease and other related dementias. Her philosophy is based in years of hands on work and research that an individual's quality of life should not end with dementia and the focus in care must shift to ability rather than disability. Clairmont is the owner/operator of English Rose Suites, a proven and successful residential model for memory care, located in Minneapolis, MN.

English Rose Suites uniquely addresses the biological, social, spiritual and psychological aspects of the whole person, realizing that this is paramount for optimal health and well-being. Clairmont is an exceptional caregiver, successful business leader and inspiring teacher who brings her passion for changing the landscape of memory care to her consulting services. Her ability to share her expertise and real life experiences in caring for people with memory challenges is inspiring and transformational.

Her coaching, training and consulting have empowered leadership teams and staff of numerous organizations across the country to achieve operational excellence and deliver the highest quality of care. Clairmont is a featured speaker at state and national conferences on a variety of aging topics.
